

Groups Call For Setting Up Of Planning Commissions

East Borough Setup Cited As Example

STROUDSBURG and surrounding townships are being urged to set up planning commissions similar to that established in East Stroudsburg prior to the flood.

The recommendation was made yesterday by representatives of area business and civic groups at a meeting at Wyckoff's tea room, sponsored by the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce.

Walter Peeney, Chamber vice-president, explained that the activities of these groups should be blended into a comprehensive program that will bring about more efficient planning than ever existed previously.

The East Stroudsburg planning commission has been set up as a purely advisory group to work in cooperation with borough council there. It was the outgrowth of a year-long study of community needs by the Exchange Club in that borough.

Aids Council

Under terms of the commission outline drawn up by council, the commission may be called upon to make studies of any problem then report back to council. It may also survey work being done and make progress reports on that work if council desires that it do so.

Representatives at yesterday's meeting agreed that the Chamber was the best organization to handle the public relation phase of the area rehabilitation program.

The Chamber is conducting these get-togethers among representatives of the various business and civic groups to crystallize immediate rehabilitation work and long-range planning.

Harold Swenson, Chamber executive secretary, said representatives felt the area should capitalize on the present interest in the Pocono Mountains. However, he stressed care must be taken not to belittle the loss of life and property.

Optimistic Attitude

At the "Pocono Comeback Story" is being written, Swenson said, a spirit of optimism is evident in the area.

"Five days ago," remarked Swenson, "the area was concerned in getting back to normal. Now we're forging ahead for a bigger and better future."

Representatives of the Monroe County Manufacturers Association briefed members of other agencies on plans to obtain financial aid for disaster-stricken businesses and industries. The Chamber was in accord with these plans.

In regard to the vacation trade, Swenson commented: "I haven't heard of a single resort owner talking about throwing in the towel."

Other organizations represented at yesterday's meeting were Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, East Stroudsburg Businessmen's Association, Stroudsburg Businessmen's Association, Eastern Pocono Resort Association, East Stroudsburg Council, American Red Cross and Civil Defense.

Burrows Heads East Borough Commission

RALPH O. BURROWS last night was elected chairman of the East Stroudsburg Planning Commission at an organizational meeting of the five-member group.

The commission was established some time ago and members were named about a month ago. In addition to Burrows, other members are James Fisher, Lester Abloff, Clifford Cramer and Elwood Field, who was named secretary at last night's session.

In its initial action, the commission voted to ask the borough council for authority to retain the Pittsburgh consulting engineering firm of Morris-Knowles for technical advice.

A representative of that company discussed borough planning and zoning with the commission last night.

The firm would be paid on a per diem basis.

person. By then darkness had settled over the area.

This morning, after sunrise, the report will be checked, Dr. Rushmore said. Each new day since the night of the flood has produced some change in the story of death and destruction.

Time—And the Missing
Each day produces a greater void between the living and the dead. In that void, somewhere, is the list of the missing—a list which is not yet complete.

State police at Stroudsburg headquarters asked Sunday night that all families who know of someone within their family who is missing report to them immediately. From these reports, State police hope to draw up a reasonably accurate list of the still missing.

On that list, at the top, are the names of 17 still unaccounted for from Camp Davis. And the name of Eugene Heller, of East Stroudsburg, reported missing by his wife after the flood.

It will take time to prepare such a list. With each day Monroe County writes a new footnote to the most disastrous chapter in its history.

Two Arrested As Result Of Altercation

NEWFOUNDLAND — Russell and Arthur Low, residents of Stroudsburg and operators in Hemlock Lodge near here, are free in $8,000 bond each for a hearing Sept. 10 before Justice of the Peace Albert W. Harmon, Greene Township, Pike county on four counts of aggravated assault and battery each.

Complaints in the case were filed before Justice of the Peace Harmon by James Fettigan and Mrs. Marie D. Dugan.

Both men entered pleas of "not guilty" to the charges and requested continuance of the hearing until they obtained legal counsel. Mr. Harmon granted a continuance until Sept. 10 and fixed bail for each man at $2,000 on each of the four counts.

Argued Over Right-Of-Way

Authorities said the charges are based on an altercation which took place Saturday night between the Lows and James Fettigan, about 45, of New York City, a cottager near Hemlock Lodge, and Edwin Dugan, about 40, and his 15-year-old son, Michael, who are residents of a cottage near Hemlock Lodge. Also involved in the fracas were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rock, Sharon Hill, Pa., also cottagers in the area.

Authorities said an argument developed over use of a right-of-way. Dr. Frank Uridel advised that Dugan is in State Hospital, Scranton, undergoing x-ray examination for injuries. Dr. Uridel treated Dugan, his son and Fettigan at the scene of the altercation for bruises, abrasions and lacerations. Dugan was then moved to State Hospital.

First call about the altercation came from Mrs. Dugan who reached Civil Defense headquarters in Newfoundland. State Police, CD officials and Dr. Uridel responded.

TWELVE junior sanitarians, including Peter B. Gearhart, of Stroudsburg, were appointed yesterday by the State Department of Health. Their annual salaries were set at $3,882.

Gearhart is a son of Mrs. A. Greenwald Gearhart of 1225 Dreher Ave.

Firemen's Equipment Is Missing

STROUDSBURG firemen—who were the front lines in the fight against the flood—started counting equipment last night and found out they're missing a lot of it.

Among the items missing are raincoats, boots, lights and other miscellaneous equipment. Much of this was loaned to residents during the peak hours of the flood.

Firemen would like very much to have the equipment returned immediately. It is needed in the event a fire should break out in the area. All residents who have equipment belonging to the department are urged to return it today.

Equipment may be returned to the office of the borough secretary in the municipal building on Seventh and Sarah Sts. in Stroudsburg. This is an urgent request.

Berwick People Substituting For Monroe Countians In Red Cross Blood Program

PEOPLE OF THE City of Berwick, Pa. are now substitute blood donors for the Monroe County Chapter, American Red Cross Blood Bank.

In order to meet the civilians needs of the local hospital, plus disaster needs here, Berwick's citizenry have unselfishly agreed to give a pint of blood to the American Red Cross to be credited to the local chapter's blood bank "account."

LeRoy Mikels, chairman of Monroe County Red Cross blood bank operations, said yesterday people here cannot give blood for two vital reasons. They are:

Reasons Given

Most people have been inoculated with typhoid serum. They are automatically ineligible for some four weeks.

Many people have been exposed to flood disaster areas where contamination existed and still exists. For health reasons they are not eligible.

E. A. Fenstermacher, editor of the Berwick Enterprise, member of a regional Red Cross committee dealing with blood bank needs, especially for disaster areas, is directing the substitute blood donor program.

Mr. Mikels, also a member of the regional committee on blood for disaster stricken areas, and Mr. Fenstermacher completed arrangements for the "Berwick blood for Monroe County" campaign in Berwick yesterday.

Message of Thanks

In a wire to Mr. Fenstermacher, Mr. Mikels said:

"The people of Monroe County will be forever grateful to the people of Berwick for their contributions of a pint of blood each. It is a priceless gift at this time."

"Flood disaster has made it practically impossible for the people of Monroe County to meet our hospital needs. Richer blessings, we are sure, will go with our thanks to the people of Berwick."

History Making Mobilization For Restoration Without Parallel In State

Mobilization of men, machines and skills to cope with last week's disaster flood damage in the Stroudsburgs, Barrett Township, Stroud Township and other regional spots will stand as a monument to the local people involved, the State Department of Highways and the assistance provided by the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The local level restoration effort pulled in every resource available and when those facilities were found insufficient, the Corps of Engineers supplemented.

Pennsylvania Highway Department, confronted with damages to strategic roads and bridges now totaling $7,500,000 with more being added each day, has and is making efforts which are without parallel in the history of Pennsylvania.

Shoving aside red tape, State Highway Department has mobilized in Monroe County and vicinity an array of engineers, supervisory forces, labor and other skills to complement equally as great an array of equipment.

Faced with the task of restoration of traffic so aid could reach the stricken areas, so the stricken areas could move as freely as possible to clean up and restore, the State Highway Department had its top men on the scene the day after the flood and continuously—except for conferences to lend impact to the restoration plans—there after.

At times these top level observers were mistaken for sightseers by their own men and ordered about with impunity. They never batted an eyelash or threw their weight around. They were here to see, to record and to hasten plans already made.

Using all the federal allocations, the department has wisely moved first with temporary structure, even eliminating spending money on some of these installations where sound detours existed so that permanent structures could be installed.

Secretary of Highways Joseph J. Lawler and his forces have developed their plans so that their regular program for next year will not be damaged. They expect to be able to proceed with that project.

Their planning also includes consideration of the Stroudsburgs by-pass, now undoubtedly hastened. No bridges will be permanently erected in the by-pass area, unless they fit in with the by-pass plan.

East Stroudsburg and Stroudsburg have reacted similarly. Their immediate task of cleanup and restoration is under a full head of steam, but so is their planning. That planning is long range, for future expansion and growth, keeping in mind that adequate measure must also be taken to provide protection against any repeat from last week's disaster flood.

That kind of sound planning and effort is what citizens must have.

Horrors Of Last Week's Flood Must Be Guide To Sound Preventive Plans

It too often is human nature, apparently, to wait for the emergency to spark the action, rather than initiating the action to ward off the emergency.

It took the great Ohio Valley floods of the mid-1930s to get a floor-control program really launched in this area. For many years, a succession of lesser disasters and a constant agitation by a handful of ardent advocates had resulted in relatively slow steps toward a system which could prevent such floods. Only after the second greatest flood in history was there the kind of action which all along had been so patently necessary.

Now, on the heels of the devastation in the Northeast, there are new and lively plans, studies and activities to prevent a repeat performance.

There are feverish efforts to improve the forecasting service, studies to determine the practicability of new flood-control programs, a sudden impulse to work out a sound flood-insurance system.

It is tragic that forethought and knowledgeable planning could not precede these disasters, instead of following them. But it has been ever thus. It takes an emergency, it seems, to prevent another one.

In this instance, we now can do no more than see to it that the vividness of last week end's horrors stay with us until the job is done—and not fade as soon as the sufferers have been restored to normal life and the immediate rehabilitation task is performed.

George Sokolsky Says...

New York Democratic Leader Does Not Want To Risk Defeat With Stevenson

The technique employed by Adlai Stevenson's managers is to give the impression that his nomination is in the bag. How can it be in the bag if he does not have the delegations of New York, Ohio, and Texas? But the Stevenson managers take the position that all they need to do is to announce that Stevenson will run and all Democrats will fall in line. By the constant repetition of an attitude and by the most cleverly punctuated public relations, the Stevenson camp hopes to steam-roller the Democratic Convention so that he is nominated on the first ballot. It is a form of mass hypnosis like its Republican counterpart that Eisenhower cannot be defeated. If the party managers continue along these lines, no one will have any reason for going to the polls as everything is all decided anyhow.

It is clear that Carmine DeSapio does not want Stevenson. He turned down Vincent Impellitteri for Mayor of New York and achieved the nomination of Robert Wagner and won. Wagner has made an extraordinarily good Mayor and New York has the most efficient Administration it has known in decades.

Then Carmine DeSapio turned down Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. for Governor of the State of New York. It was risky politics rejecting a Roosevelt in New York. Junior tried the same trick that Stevenson is employing—blitz the leaders into believing that it is in the bag. When Junior lunched with Carmine DeSapio and Charles Buckley, the leader of the Bronx, and told them that all they had to do was jump on his bandwagon, they gave him to understand that if he was so well-fixed, he did not need them. And that ended it. Averell Harrison was nominated and, beating the Dewey machine, was elected.

Last Spring, Charles Buckley delivered an address in which he told the A. D. A. and the Liberal Party that they were not wanted and that the Democrats in New York would have nothing further to do with them. Carmine DeSapio sat on the dais and applauded vociferously. That ended an alliance, which at one time included Communists, between the Democrats and the left-wingers, organized by Franklin D. Roosevelt to help keep Fiorello La Guardia in office.

Now comes the question of Adlai Stevenson. In the first place, DeSapio does not like Stevenson because he has a tendency to be A. D. A. in thought, if not in membership. Secondly, most of his personal associates have been of the A. D. A. stripe. Thirdly, he ran, he was humiliatingly defeated, and during the nearly three years since his defeat, he has done nothing to strengthen himself.

As a matter of arithmetic, Stevenson was defeated by Democrats. He lost the Solid South to Eisenhower because of his radical connections. For what reason would he not lose the Solid South in 1956? He did not do too well in the Big Cities which Roosevelt had turned into fortresses of Democratic strength. For what reason would Stevenson do better in the Big Cities in 1956? What has Stevenson done since 1952 to strengthen his position besides me-tooing Eisenhower? And if Eisenhower is so perfect, how is he going to be defeated by Stevenson?

The position of Carmine DeSapio would be that Stevenson does not have an outside chance of being elected; therefore why should he be nominated? Is that an admission of the Democratic Party that it is running for defeat in 1956? Is it sound for a party ever to run for defeat? Are there no men in the Democratic Party who might win? Does the Party have to accept the Republican slogan that Eisenhower is unbeatable? Is not such a slogan itself in the nature of a public relations blitzkrieg?

At any rate, this is the nature of New York Democratic thinking on the subject of Adlai Stevenson and obviously as long as the leaders think that way, Stevenson will not get the New York delegation unless there is no other candidate. The New Yorkers like Averell Harriman, but they would take Governor Frank Lausche of Ohio; they would take Governor Shivers of Texas. They do not become ecstatic over either Senator Kefauver or Senator Symington who once was quite a hero in these parts before the McCarthy television show. But Stevenson, they do not want, as they do not want the A. D. A.

Our Government is so generous, footing the bill!

Eugene W. Castle

Government Can Move Fast When It Breaks Up "Boom"

Ever notice that whenever the government steps in to put the brakes on a boom it is invariably at a time when you personally haven't sensed any desperate need for that kind of help?

You want to get anything else done by the government and it takes a month of Sundays. This has been such a universal experience that everybody assumes it is physically impossible for bureaucrats to move at anything faster than a snail's pace.

But they can be quick enough on their feet when they want to be. Let them take it into their heads to nip a boom in the bud, so to speak, and—wham!—they've got it nipped before you can say federal reserve discount rate.

Uncle Sam never seems to catch on that people are putting out too much money for taxes but he's really a swift when it comes to detecting that people are spending too much money for things they want.

And that raises another question: Where do government economists get the inkings that prompt them all of a sudden to clamp down on easy credit before the average citizen even notices how easy it is?

Not for the kind of statistics the government puts out for general consumption, certainly. They only show how things were going in the fiscal year ended 18 months ago, not how they're going now. Data that old are useful mainly for coroners' reports, historians, post mortems, and high-school debaters' arguments.

Do the boys in Washington hold back a private stock of late-vintage statistics for their own use, just to make their predictions look good?

Whether they do it that way or with mirrors, they are always letting the wind out of a boom before I am fully aware that there is one. Just as they are doing now, they are forever cocking an eye at bank clearings and installment credit and deciding it's time for everybody to taper off on the free-riding before I ever get nicely tapered on.

Sure, I too read in the Washington tip sheets that times are flush, business great (notwithstanding a few soft spots here and there), factories are humming, debts are rising, employment is up and the recently unemployed are blowing money like drunken sailors on TV sets and air-conditioning. I even see signs of accelerating myself, among other people, and sometimes say to myself that some of those high-riders are riding to a fall.

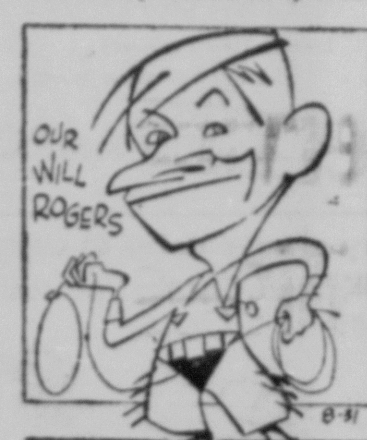

But times don't seem any flusher than ever around our place and it strikes me as odd that every time prosperity is reported to be headed my way somebody in authority calls it off before I get to the corner.

Either I was born 18 months too soon or the government economists and I need to get together and synchronize our calendars.

Robert S. Allen Reports

Democrats Wonder What's On Sen. Kefauver's Mind

Washington, August 29: Democratic leaders would give a lot to know what's on Senator Estes Kefauver's mind.

The Tennesseean has them guessing and worrying. He is largely the key to the party's presidential scramble, because of his devoted Democratic following and active organizations in a number of crucial states—foremost of them California, Wisconsin, Nebraska, New Hampshire, which he carried in the 1952 primaries.

So what Kefauver is thinking and doing is of top moment to his potential rivals. They are sure he's up to something but don't know exactly what.

To force his hand, lieutenants of Adlai Stevenson are quietly setting the stage for what may turn out to be a far-reaching showdown at the Wisconsin Democratic convention in Green Bay, October 7.

In an effort to assume their control of the party organization and Wisconsin's 28 delegates to the 1956 convention, Stevenson's backers are resorting to a wily stratagem: They propose to elect their partisans to State Chairman, National Committeeman and National Committeewoman at the Green Bay convention.

From all inside indications, it looks like the Stevensonites will do that.

The likely winners of these potent party posts are supporters of the former Illinois Governor. Further, the Stevenson faction is getting influential backstage aid and comfort from National Chairman Paul Butler and former Chairman Steve Mitchell, who is devoting most of his time to ensuring Stevenson's renomination next year.

Some Kefauver leaders are advising him to sidestep this showdown. They are urging counter tactics.

They want Kefauver to announce that he vigorously disapproves of "outside interference in state conventions," and that he is asking his friends not to meddle in the Wisconsin meeting.

These Kefauverites ardently argue that, regardless of the loss of the three party offices, he is still sure to win Wisconsin's preferential primary next April 1.

The Tennessee Senator is weighing the matter. Before flying to Finland last week, from where he will go to Russia for a look-around there, Kefauver indicated he wasn't convinced of the soundness of this plan. He inclined to the view at this stage of the still-formative Democratic presidential race it is sounder to stand up and battle than to duck and run.

One cable along that line has already been received from him in Helsinki.

Meanwhile, the Stevenson group has chalked up one major score. They deftly arranged for him to be the main convention speaker.

Michigan's Governor "Soapy" Williams will also speak, but that's window dressing. Kefauver's devotees are strenuously endeavoring to maneuver his appearance, but they haven't succeeded so far. What he finally decides to do about waging or dodging the convention showdown may be determined by whether he gets the chance to talk there.

Note: Probable winner as State Chairman is Philo Nash, well-to-do Wisconsin Rapids cranberry grower, former assistant to President Truman, and avowed Stevenson backer. Incumbent National Committeeman Carl Thompson is virtually certain to be re-elected, and Marjorie Benson as National Committeewoman. Both are pro-Stevenson.

Democratic Politicians—Speaker Sam Rayburn and Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson will be honored at a $100-a-plate statewide dinner. The big event is being organized by Texas Democratic leaders with the enthusiastic help of National Committee "officials." National Treasurer Matt McCloskey, Philadelphia publisher, made a special trip to Texas for this purpose. . . . Keep an eye on former President Truman's Labor Day speech in Detroit. The inside word is he may make some significant comments about the Democratic presidential race. He is being urged to say that while he is for Stevenson, the door is not being slammed against any other candidate—as Truman did against Kefauver in 1952. . . .

The Tennesseean's friends are being told by Truman that he is not "hostile to him," and that he warmly approves Kefauver's hard-hitting investigation of the Dixon-Yates contract and work on the serious problem of juvenile delinquency. Backstage discussions are underway for a personal meeting between Truman and Kefauver when the former comes East in the fall. . . .

Stevenson rivals are deriving a lot of comfort from a statement Tammany boss Carmine DeSapio is credited with making to David Lawrence, Mayor of Pittsburgh and a power in Pennsylvania politics, as follows: "The Democratic party needs a new, fresher and stronger candidate for President."

Woodchuck Fatality Old Story

—by H. G. Heller

The old story: a hunter who "thought he saw a woodchuck" fatally shot a man. The casualty occurred in southern Montgomery County early this month. Both men involved were from Philadelphia.

According to the shooter's report, he was trying to locate his hunting companion at the end of the day's hunt. He saw something in an alfalfa field he believed to be a woodchuck. Taking aim with a .22 caliber Hornet rifle, at a distance of about 200 feet, he fired and ran to pick up the supposed chuk. Seeing he had critically wounded his companion in the temple the offender sought the aid of a nearby farmer and removed the victim to a hospital. The injured man died there on August 12th.

Here again there is no question who was guilty in this hunting tragedy. But a simple precaution would prevent many such mistake shootings. A white or bright head-covering at least—one that stands out in sharp contrast to the summer background—would often spell the difference between life or death for a chuk hunter.

Bears Here

Two of the Commission's officers commented recently on bear evidence in northeast counties.

Said Nicholas M. Ruha, "The fondness of bears for juneberries (service berries) was again made apparent to me on an inspection trip to food strips on State Game Lands No. 206, Luzerne County. Border cuttings around food strips there contained a goodly amount of juneberry, and most of the shrubs had a fair crop of berries. Had, that is, until bears moved in. Every shrub was ripped and torn.

Garden Damages

Game Protector Harold W. Wiggins, Northampton County, says one of his deputies slept under the stars, by request, for several nights recently. Wiggins explained, "The man received a complaint a garden was damaged, a garden in Roseto. Exhausting all other methods in attempting to remove the animal the deputy resorted to use of a steel trap. Checking results, the first morning after setting it, he was elated to find he was successful after so many futile attempts. Without looking he started to pull the animal from under a woodpile by the trap chain. By the time he was able to distinguish the black tail Mr. Skunk had gone into his act. The deputy ruefully said he would never take for granted what he caught without looking.

N.Y. Confidential —By Lee Mortimer

Kicking the Gong Around: My informant tells me that the shocking dope problem among GIs in the Orient is winked at by certain top American brass for political reasons connected with the "soft-to-Communism" policy of the intellectual ballet-dancers who have influenced our official thinking for so long a time. The little fellow in G2 and CIC turns in the evidence to his superiors but when it gets to upper echelons in Washington it is pigeon-holed and the investigators transferred. The FBI long ago was shackled, and forbidden to work on monkey business in the armed forces abroad; and the U. S. Bureau of Narcotics, which is permitted to keep agents in Europe, is not allowed by Washington to maintain a staff in Asia, which is the trouble spot. This plays directly into our enemy's hands.

Chapter Two: My informant states categorically that a large percentage of the deluded PWs who chose to remain with the Reds were addicts and were given all the dope they wanted by the Communists. He suggests that the double turncoats who returned should be examined for narcotics instead of brainwashing. He says that the entire military dope problem was a long range affair planned to the last detail by the Roosevelt appointed and Truman protected Harry Dexter White and that one of the reasons for the White's invention of the curious Military Payment Certificate was to enable traffic drugs to be financed in the first place, to allow it to be distributed to American troops in the second place, and to provide a means of sending the proceeds back behind the curtain to "our brave allies" in the third place.

$2 Million Loss Results From Flood

NEWFOUNDLAND — Preliminary estimates of damage to property, buildings and their contents in the LaAnna-South Sterling-Newfoundland - Greentown area have been fixed at close to $750,000, according to a report made by a local damage appraisal committee.

The committee, completing a house-to-house tour of the region, reported to Willis Gilpin, civil defense coordinator for the area, that damages to roads and bridges would swell the total to well over $2 million.

Breaking down the property damage by villages, the men estimated that the South Sterling-LaAnna damage would run to near $160,000 and that Newfoundland suffered approximately $475,000 worth of ruin. The Greentown area, where the loss of life totalled 10 persons and four buildings were completely swept away by the angry waters, was hit for an additional $85,000.

"Conservative" Figures

The appraisers, F. Carroll Kraut, Marvin Woltjen and Homer Gilpin, said that their estimates were "conservative". They added that their examinations of properties was, of necessity, hastily conducted and that much hidden damage was possibly present and not included in the totals reported.

Meanwhile, the communities along the south and east branches of the Wallenpaupack continued to dig themselves out of the thousands of tons of silt deposited on everything when the high tide of the flood receded.

Local volunteer workers, toiling on without assurance that their efforts and that of their equipment would be reimbursed, were joined Saturday and yesterday by 300 workers from neighboring communities.

Monroe County Civil Defense made 100 of these volunteers available. They were housed in Milford and transported here by bus.

Honesdale Helps

Another 100 came from the Lummus Company in Honesdale, who have sent smaller crews into the area for cleanup details every night for the past week. The remainder came in smaller contingents from neighboring Gouldsboro, Moscow, Lake Ariel and Hamlin.

State highway crews broke through the last remaining road barrier late Friday night when a 300-yard-washout in LaAnna was made passable, completing a north-south artery on Route 90 from Hamlin through to LaAnna and the south. Route 507 is still not in operation between here and Gouldsboro due to a gigantic landslide in the Angels area and a washout near White Beauty View on Lake Wallenpaupack prevents a direct connection with Hawley. US Army Corps of Engineers personnel are on the scene surveying conditions along the bed of the south branch of the Wallenpaupack with the restoration of the stream to its original location in mind. A spokesman from that agency said that repairs to damage to publicly-owned property would also be given top priority.

Red Cross Rehabilitation Work To Cost Two Millions

PENNSYLVANIA Disaster Headquarters of the Red Cross estimated yesterday it will spend two million dollars in the next two months for family rehabilitation work in the flood-stricken counties of the commonwealth.

The estimate was given by Cecil Davis, state disaster director. He reported that to date 12,510 persons in 12 counties had been given "emergency mass care."

Davis added that 8,211 families had reported suffering a loss in the floods produced by rains from Hurricane Diane. He said that some 2,500 people have applied for rehabilitation aid and that another 1,500 are expected to file applications shortly.

Federal Aid

Meanwhile the Federal Civil Defense Administration established a liaison office at Harrisburg to process applications for federal aid by political subdivisions of the state.

John L. Sullivan, Region 2 administrator for the FCDA, said that Gov. Leader has designated Dr. Richard Gerstell, state civil defense director, as his representative in federal relief application processing.

The FCDA office will remain open 12 hours daily seven days a week until the disaster relief work is complete, Sullivan said. Offices also have been established in Easton and Reading.

PROFESSIONAL STEPS FOR CLEANING AND PURIFICATION

1 Vacuum out dirt, muddy water, silt and slime with a heavy duty Series 80 TOR-NADO industrial vacuum cleaner. The 1 1/2 horsepower model has a 60 inch (static pressure) water lift. These professional machines pump water as easily as domestic vacuums pump air.

2 Scrub walls, fixtures and floors with a solution of FIRST Antiseptic Detergent. A product widely used in hospitals which gives both cleaning and germicidal action. Allow solution to remain on surfaces exposed to flood contamination for from three to five minutes to destroy musty odors and disease causing germs.

3 Do not flush rinse, simply vacuum the surplus solution from the floor. The residual antiseptic will have penetrated the pores of flooded surfaces and will prevent mold and mildew.

These steps are recommended by the Formula Floor Products, Inc. of Newark, commercial cleaning consultants and national distributors of janitor's supplies. The method is the fast, safe, economical, professional way to restore areas which have been ravaged by flood.

Formula Floor Products, Inc. representatives will demonstrate these steps to any state or federal official or public officer or private business or institution.

Katz & Sons Replacing Furnaces

BUSINESS firms in the area are going all out to help people who have suffered from the flood.
One particular instance of this is the D. Katz & Sons plumbing and heating division, Dreher Ave.,
Stroudsburg.

Replacement
The Katz firm is repairing or replacing boilers, furnaces, conversion units and water heaters for their customers at the cost price.
Robert H. Collins, manager of the Katz plumbing and heating division, pointed out last week: We do not wish to make a profit on any of our customers who have been hurt by the flood.

"Manufacturers of our equipment have agreed to replace parts at cost, and we will furnish the labor necessary also at cost."

Wood Preservatives
FENCE posts and other underground lumber need preservatives to prevent rot. Chlorinated phenols and zinc naphthenates penetrate pores and repel fungi. These can be painted over. Copper naphthenate and creosote also are preservatives, but tend to bleed through paint.

a modern day version of Whitney's Cotton Gin. It represents the first stage in the construction of an innerspring mattress. Cotton linters are "fed" into the picker, where all impurities and inferior packing are removed. The cleaned and fluffed cotton is then ready to be used

Sports Editor

SUNDAY was a big day for Stan Dudas, likeable assistant golf pro at Shawnee Inn and Country Club. First, Stan won the Philadelphia PGA crown at Springhaven Country Club. Secondly, Stan returned home just in time to rush Helen, his wife, to Monroe County General Hospital where she presented him with a baby girl, to be known as Donna Diane Dudas from this day forward.

Mrs. Dudas and Donna, who weighed in at six pounds, 10 ounces, are doing fine. Stan reported last night. The young professional was still walking in air over the double dose of good luck which reached out and grabbed him on Sunday. Winning the Philadelphia PGA crown was the biggest thrill in Stan's golf career and the birth of a child is a thrill that no father will ever forget.

Dudas had his putter working in near-perfect fashion on Sunday as he turned in a four-and-three verdict over Charley Lepre in the 36-hole final round of the PGA. Stan required only 30 putts to tour the first 18 holes, during which the Shawnee entry shot a two-under par 69. He was one over par when the match ended in 15 holes in the afternoon. Sunday's showing was probably the best putting demonstration ever presented by Dudas, who is regarded as one of the rising young professionals.

Stan arrived at Springhaven last Friday after shoveling mud and helping to clean up at Shawnee Inn and Country Club last Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. He practiced on the PGA course last Friday and Saturday and then played the finest two rounds of golf in his career to drag down first prize in a field that featured many of the better pros in the East. The morning round of 69 included five birdies.

Dudas eliminated three former Philadelphia PGA title holders en route to the 1955 crown. Stan sidetracked Rod Munday, York; Teri Johnson, Wilmington; and Henry Williams, Kutztown, in that order as he battled through the huge field that featured former champions in losing roles early in the competition. Right now Dudas is back at work with the remainder of the staff at Shawnee, cleaning up and putting the local course in shape for the Waite Memorial Tournament.

Although Shawnee was extensively damaged by the recent flood, owner Fred Waring is going ahead with plans to hold the annual Waite Memorial from Tuesday, September 6, to Saturday, September 10. Workers are currently moving dirt, rebuilding tees and in general racing against time to repair damage inflicted by the raging waters. It is quite possible that the course may be changed slightly to make it possible to hold the tournament.

It has also been reported that the tournament may be played over only 16 holes each day, although if work progresses according to its present schedule the entire 18 holes may be ready for competition for entries in the Waite. The course will be the scene of high speed work between now and September 6, but if the job can be done ahead per Harry Obitz and greenskeeper John Dimmick can turn the trick.

Obitz, one of the finest guys in the sports world, lost everything in the flood. His house was even washed from its foundation. But Harry snapped right to work and his golf shop is completely cleaned out and dried. It will be painted and equipment moved back into proper position in a few days. The Waite will feature many of the outstanding amateur golfers in the United States, just as it has in past years.

Matt Brooks, purchasing agent of the Brooklyn Dodgers, wrote a letter to Marty Baldwin, well known local sportsman, asking if there was anything the top club in the National League could do to help the area recover from its recent flood losses. Yesterday's rainout game between Kansas City and the Red Sox will be played in Boston when the A's make their final trip through the east. It can't be played in Kansas City as listed because the Sox don't visit the western most spot in the American League again this season.

Bowlers To Meet

A MEETING of the East Stroudsburg Ladies Bowling League will take place at Harmon's Recreation today at 7:30 p.m.

East Stroudsburg High To Play Nine Football Games

Loop Rivals List Slates For Season

EAST Stroudsburg High's football schedule lists nine games this season, the first of which is to feature Slatings-ton as the opposition at Memorial Stadium on Friday night, September 16.

The schedule contains all of the teams which have been East Stroudsburg foes down through the years, plus Port Jervis, a newcomer to the Cavaliers' schedule.

East Stroudsburg's slate consists of five home games and four on the road. Slatings-ton, Bangor, Wilson Borough and Port Jervis will be met under the lights at Memorial Stadium. Nazareth will form the opposition in the only afternoon game at Memorial Stadium this season.

Pen Argyl and Hellertown will be afternoon games on the road, while the Cavaliers will play at Lehigh on the lights.

May Change Nothing definite has been announced concerning the Thanksgiving Day struggle with Stroudsburg. The tussle was originally listed for flood damaged Gordon Giffels Field, but may be moved to Memorial Stadium. This is a 10 a.m. affair.

Hellertown is the first Lehigh-Northampton League team to swing into action, battling Wilson Borough on Saturday, September 10.

Bangor opens at home with Palmetton under the lights on Friday, September 16.

Local Dogs Gain Honors

CLOUD CREST Kennels, located in Mount Pocono, featured a pair of winners in the Perkiomen Valley Kennel Club Dog Show at Hatfield on Sunday.

Astolat Star of Cloud Crest was first in the American bred class and Cloud Crest Color Guard won best of breed honors.

Wins

Sugarbrook Supreme, bred by Sugarbrook Kennels, Mountainhome, won best of variety and was first in the sporting group class in the same show. The black cocker spaniel is now owned by W. Emilen Roosevelt, Far Hills, N.J.

Mrs. Constance Hubbard, owner of Astolat Kennels, Effort, was a judge in the Chagrin Valley Kennel Club Show in North Randall, O., a suburb of Cleveland. Mrs. Hubbard judged 20 Shetland Sheep Dogs and 16 Collies.

Famous Sire Of Harness Race Champions Sold

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 29 (AP)—Adios, sire of harness race champions, was sold today for a half million dollars. The event was hailed as being of "tremendous significance" to the standardbred horse industry.

The United States Trotting Association here, which announced the sale, said the price for the 15-year-old stallion was four times higher than the previous record for standardbred horses.

Hanover Shoe Farms of Hanover, Pa., owned by Lawrence B. Sheppard, president of the USTA, paid the $500,000 for

Kaline Virtually Certain Of Batting Crown

NEW YORK, Aug. 29 (AP)—Young Al Kaline of the Detroit Tigers seems a virtual certainty to win the American League batting title and become the second sophomore in the loop's history to capture the crown.

With only four weeks of the regular season remaining, Kaline tops the league with a .349 average and holds a comfortable 33-point lead over runnerup Vic

Power of Kansas City, who is batting .316. Figures include games through Sunday.

The only other second-year man to win the junior circuit batting championship was George Stone of the St. Louis Browns in 1906. Stone, a 29-year-old outfielder, hit .358 that season.

The Tigers' Harvey Kuenn remained last week at .309.

Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees leads the league in homers with 34.

Philadelphia's Richie Ashburn, continuing to utilize his speed and punch-hitting to good advantage, looks like the player to beat for National League batting laurels. The 28-year-old outfielder, who has hit over .300 in five of his eight seasons with the Phils, is the current pace-setter with a .333 average. His closest pursuer is Brooklyn's Roy Campanella, a .321 stickman.

Ted Kluszewski of Cincinnati, the home run leader with 41, maintained third place in the batting listings with a .318 mark.

Slumping "Duke" Snider of the Dodgers held on to his runs batted in lead in the National League with 116 and Boston's Jackie Jensen retained his RBI supremacy in the American loop with 101.

The Yanks' Tommy Byrne has the best won-lost percentage among American League pitchers, 12-4, .750, and Cleveland's Herb Score is the strikeout leader with 196. In the National League Don Newcombe of Brooklyn is the percentage pace-setter with 18-4, .818.

Orioles Sweep Doubleheader From Tigers

DETROIT, Aug. 29 (AP)—The last-place Baltimore Orioles swept a doubleheader from the Detroit Tigers today, winning the opener 6-0 on Erv Palica's five-hitter and taking the second 4-3 on Fred Marsh's bases-loaded single in the seventh inning.

Nashua Draws Post Position Against Swaps

CHICAGO, Aug. 29 (AP)—Nashua drew the No. 1 post position today for his $100,000 winner-take-all match race with Swaps, but trainers of each colt saw little, if any, advantage in the spot.

The big showdown for sophomore racing honors will be Wednesday at Washington Park over 1 1/4 miles, with each packing 126 pounds. A crowd of about 25,000 is expected and the weatherman promises a fair, pleasant day.

The event, to be televised and broadcast nationally by CBS starting at 6 p.m. EDT, has attracted nearly 100 writers from all parts of the country, making the press box contingent the largest ever to cover a horse race in Chicago.

The draw was made in the office of racing secretary Fred "Pat" Farrell, with "Peaches" Morton, a blind former trainer, picking out Nashua's card for No. 1 post position.

Later, Nashua's 81-year-old trainer, "Sunny" Jim Fitzsimmons said: "Horses run better on the outside, but this race doesn't make much difference, especially after the first few jumps."

Mesach Tenney, Swaps' conditioner, said that "it's a two-horse race with a stall between them in the gate—the start should be free of trouble."

Indians Bring Up Three Players

CLEVELAND, Aug. 29 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians will add three players to their roster this week in a move to bolster their forces for the stretch drive of the torrid American League pennant race.

Club officials announced today that Rudy Regalado and Billy Harrell of the Indians' farm club at Indianapolis and Bud Daley, recently purchased from Sacramento of the Pacific Coast League, will join the club Friday. That will make them available in time for the important four-game weekend series with the Chicago White Sox.

Navy Recruiters Move Station

P. J. DOLAN, BMC, USN, recruiter in charge of the U. S. Navy Recruiting Station, announced yesterday that because of the damaged condition of the Easton Post Office Building due to the recent flood, the U. S. Navy Recruiting Office has changed its location to the Post Office Building at Phillipsburg, N. J. The office will be open from 8:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. Monday through Friday and 8:30 a. m. to noon on Saturday.

Chief Dolan said records of all applicants who have made out pre-enlistment papers are still on file at the new location.

Shelters Now Caring For 163 Persons

THERE ARE still 141 persons in the Stroudsburg area living in mass shelters: the Stroudsburg Methodist Church, the YMCA, the VFW, The Sherman Theater, has been closed as a shelter. Six families have been placed in permanent homes, according to the Red Cross. There are no houses or apartments listed in the immediate area, and lack of transportation prevents them from using homes too far from town.

The problem will resolve itself, Red Cross Chairman Arlington Williams said, when the Stroudsburg homes, largely out of action because of mud and debris rather than actual damage, can be placed back in service to their owners.

Difference In Conditions

In East Stroudsburg, the long-range program is more serious and the immediate problem less serious, Harrison Place explained. There are only 22 persons now in shelters with all the rest of the homeless being cared for in private homes of friends or relatives.

However, there were many more homes in East Stroudsburg totally destroyed and many others seriously damaged so that they will not be able to be put into action for some months, if at all. Meanwhile the families quartered together are often too crowded for any but emergency living and over a long period would need to be resettled.

VFW Closes Food Station; Thousands Of Meals Served

STROUDSBURG VETERANS of Foreign Wars has discontinued serving food to flood victims and emergency workers. However, meals are still being served at the Presbyterian Church.

For 10 days, the VFW served thousands of meals, in addition to soup, sandwiches and coffee.

The program was started the morning after the flood struck this area. At first, meals were served in a carnival tent. Darkness ultimately forced VFW members to transfer their emergency feeding station to the post home where operations were continued until last Sunday night.

Delivered Food

During the height of the emergency, the veterans also delivered coffee, soup and sandwiches to residents of flood-stricken sections of the borough and to workers at the State bridge, Stokes Mill and other points. Eventually, this service was taken over by other organizations.

Commander Paul V. Weary and Charles Nevil, post disaster committee chairman, spent their entire time at the post home when the emergency was most acute. They were assisted by many post and auxiliary members and volunteers.

Many flood victims are still being given temporary shelter at the post home.

Businessmen, hotels, farmers and others provided large quantities of food for use by the VFW in its emergency feeding program.

Mass Feeding To Continue Indefinitely

THE PROBLEM of mass feeding is one which must continue for some time, Red Cross workers reported yesterday. Only when families are settled in permanent homes or in temporary homes where they can cook their own meals, will the work be discontinued.

Meanwhile there are many volunteer workers who must be fed. At the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church and the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church, a total of 1,700 meals are being served each day.

Vast supplies of food are being stored at Pocono Produce Co. and in the basement of the Montgomery Ward Store, Stroudsburg, and in the High School in East Stroudsburg. These are distributed to the mass feeding stations, to the Salvation Army and other bulk calls.

As families are placed so that they can prepare their own meals, they will be given food orders through the Red Cross disaster centers in each community, and central "stores" be set up where these orders can be filled from donated supplies as long as they are available.

Centers Get Supplies Of New Clothing

THE RED CROSS clothing centers in both Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg have received donations of new clothing ranging into the thousands of dollars.

In Stroudsburg it is located at the former Montgomery Ward Store on Main St., and in East Stroudsburg in the former Globe Furniture Store basement. New fur coats were set up from 1 to 5 each weekday.

Holt Wyckoff and Edna Smeltz both reported a full staff of volunteer workers, excellent accommodations, and a smooth program. The great difficulty at present is that families who will need blankets, winter clothing, and other supplies that flood sufferers are not at present in a position to take because they have no place to store them.

These problems will be eased as more homes are placed back in operation.

Sterilizer To Be Moved

RESPONSE to the chance given residents to use a sterilizing unit stationed at Fifth and Main Sts. and Third and Main yesterday was "so poor" that the unit will be moved to East Stroudsburg this morning, according to Mrs. James Cummings, Stroudsburg board of health secretary.

Mrs. Cummings said that the unit will be stationed throughout the day today in East Stroudsburg. If response is also poor there, the unit will be taken from the area, she said.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your future. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 4 or more subtract 4. If the number is less than 4 add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Your Horoscope Today

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Tuesday, August 30

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Anxious rays. Make use of your own ideas, and knock down to tasks ahead. Present new ideas only after careful analysis. Don't go off on a tangent, unrelated to your objective.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Fine indications generally. Don't be confused by details. Perform at top-notch level for compensating results. A persistent demonstration of your approach will be great aid.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Concentrate activity on essentials. A busy schedule, properly executed, will bring satisfying gains. Needle yourself into positive but strained action. Trade constructive information.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Maintain a steady, forthright tempo. Don't waste time rehashing gossip during business hours. Sift any desire to expand efforts in worthless matters.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Particularly auspicious influences should encourage you to reap greater benefits. Curtail excess or waste motion. Pursue objectives vigorously to plan.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—Tried and true methods best today. Don't go from one extreme to another. Make use of your true talents to overcome obstacles, break down "stone walls."

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—A blossoming day for budding thought. Prepare for a series of pre-arranged programs. While the world strives for peace, add your bit to aid. Mutual understanding required.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio)—Get back "on the beam" after the weekend. Your mind should be refreshed enough to entertain new, useful ideas. Be wise and active, conquer difficulties by constructive accomplishment. Smile!

November 24 to December 23 (Sagittarius)—Be cautious in choosing the direction in which to drive. Proper presentation of your ideas can spell the difference between success and failure. It is wise to show yourself at your best.

December 24 to January 21 (Capricorn)—A wholesome responsibility for worthless matters, big and small, difficult and delicate. Industry, trades, dealing with the public, handling products of the soil newly favored.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Though the day is generally favorable, your planet, Uranus, advances against erratic action, sudden, perhaps unpredictable changes. Steady February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Heed advice to Aquarius but both you and they should enjoy the many opportunities for happiness, also for improvements. Personal interests can gain on this generous, possibly prosperous day.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—You have today are dependable, sincere, capable and artistic. There is no limit to the attainment and advancement that can be yours if you keep faith with yourself, don't worry yourself overwork. You are especially equipped for newspaper work, as writer, analyst, actor, advisor. You are usually patient, kindly to children, old folks and those in less favored positions. Never permit worry or fear of the future to hinder your advancement. Keep studying, seeking the lightest, good people, and always have faith in God's help.
